Auch encounter historic centre of Auch

One fine morning, I met up with Georges Beauvais, a B&B owner who hails from Franche-Comté. I was intrigued by what he would make of the city's heritage, so I let him lead the way.

• Aline: Hello Georges, tell me how you first got acquainted with Auch.

• Georges: I came to set up home with my wife Edith who was living here. She took me into the maze of poussteries to show me her favourite spots.

• A: What are you particularly fond of?

• G: I have a soft spot for the Town Hall where the Hall of Fame and the Italianate theatre match each other for beauty.

• A: Did you know that the portrait of Hector de Galard, the Jack of Diamonds, hangs in the Hall of Fame? He's said to be Hector from the original French deck of cards. Do you enjoy having a flutter Georges?

• G: I challenge our guests to find "Napoleon's column" when they go on their walk around town.

• A: Will you take me to it?

• G: Yes, it's on the Auch city centre guided walking tour promoted by the Tourist Office.

• A: Do you enjoy going on guided tours?

• G: I've had good fun on the wackier tours of the Greater Auch Art and History Country, such as the one on the city's criminals or the sensory tour of the cathedral when you walk around with a mirror under your nose!

• A: Tell me about the last tour you took

• G: I went to see the "new" Museum of the Americas-Auch. I just loved its garden entrance and the ultra-contemporary displays.

We walked towards the monumental staircase where we took in the fabulous views.

• A: The way the city's organized with its two faubourgs – the lower town and the upper town – took me by surprise. We always encourage our hosts to carry on walking once they've crossed the bridge over the Gers so that they get the feel of the whole city.

• A: Do you think that Auch, known as the best surprise of the southwest, keeps its promise?

• G: Definitely! This town is packed with surprises.

I thank Georges, having really enjoyed the time spent with this lively, insatiably curious ambassador.

Miss these at your peril

Sainte-Marie Cathedral

The cathedral, whose construction spanned two hundred years, was finished in 1680 and exemplifies the transition between Flamboyant Gothic and classic Renaissance style. It houses some absolute treasures:

- the oak-panelled choir, its stalls featuring more than 1,500 carved figures,
- the 16th-century stained glass windows, by Arnaut de Moles, that throw wonderful light in shimmering colours,
- the Jean de Joyeuse organ played during summertime concerts.

Museum of the Americas – Auch

It houses a fabulous collection of Pre-Columbian art – the 2nd largest in France after the Quai Branly Museum – as well as sumptuous Egyptian, Gallo-Roman, Medieval collections, fine arts, sculpture, and also traces the traditions of Gascony.

The Monumental Staircase and d'Artagnan

The Monumental Staircase, finished in 1863, links the new town to the historic city. The bronze statue commemorating d'Artagnan, the most famous Gascon, appears to dare you to walk up the 234 steps. The top landing awaits you with the contemporary sculpture, "l'Observatoire du temps".

Walkabout

If you fancy doing a self-guided tour, you can make up your own route and explore the capital of Gascony, a former Gallo-Roman settlement that became the county seat of Armagnac and an archdiocese. It will take you 2 hrs to complete the tour.

What's laid on for families?

In the spring of 2019, @Team Ballet hit the road for another discovery trip of our beautiful country over the long Easter weekend, this time setting off for Auch and its surroundings in the Gers!

"We tested 'Explore Auch' to visit Auch. The app takes you on a great tour around the city's iconic sights. You could say, the Ballet-yettes were totally sold on the concept."

"All-round fun for the whole family". Fancy having over 60 hectares of land to quad around on! Kids and adults alike can have a go. The tracks are graded by difficulty and take you to spectacular viewpoints of the Gers. What makes Quad Concept so special is that everyone pitches in together for a bundle of laughs. Francis is there to guide you and you can't help getting carried away by his enthusiasm for the sport out there in the open. Ella overcame her reticence to drive her own quad and it really was a good way to encourage her!"

Ferme de Bidache Black Gascon Pig breeding farm visit. "Here, pampered piglets are watched over by a one of a kind keeper. For when we go shopping, animal well-being and buying local produce are at the top of our wish list. Visiting this sort of farm gives you an inkling of how committed some of our French farmers are to provide us with high quality produce. They take their preparations to heart by ensuring that their animals live in the kind of conditions that enable them to thrive and by keeping the environment top of mind."

☺ Team Ballet's stay here coincided with two events that are ideally suited to family enjoyment.

"Every year, about 90 troupes of artists come to Auch rehearse and perform. We were lucky enough to come during the annual Pirouette Circaouette festival that is specially for the kiddies and families."

Pirouette Circaouette Festival

Every year for the April school holidays at Auch – ask us for the programme.

"You could say that 'Cheers' was the byword this Easter weekend when we went on an organized bottle hunt instead of an egg hunt. All the stops were pulled out to ensure we had a good time – a super local group played music, the food was fantastic and there was an Easter egg decorating activity for the children, and of course estate-bottled wine tasting for the grown-ups."

Lavardens tour by 2CV

Enjoying a country road trip together as the seasons change...

I've lived here for over fifteen years, and there are still plenty of places I have yet to explore in my beloved Gers. What I enjoy most is taking my friends and family who turn up at any time of the year to my favourite places and sharing my love of this delightful corner of France.

One of my favourite spots just a few kilometres from home is LAVARDENS.

It's one of the "Most beautiful villages in France" (there are six of them in the Gers).

I like its quiet, charming lanes, the mellow stonework, and when it holds summer evening markets the magic that works its spells (I just love watching the children dance to the band playing in the square), its castle and the exhibitions it puts on, its two little restaurants, its rather special feel, the vintage car rally in August (Retromotion), its hiking trails and the countryside that constantly changes as the months go by. The colours are a feast for the eyes in spring and autumn! When you drive from Auch, the first thing you see are the vine rows with the castle and village in the background. 😊

One of the reasons why I like this trip, is because of the way the route takes us to our destination... It's full of bends and lush, green countryside when we take to the road on fine days, never mind the season.

More to the point, I love giving our Belle Deuche – our 2CV – an outing.

We set out in the morning in time to drop in on one of the restaurants, either on the way there or in the village itself...

In the middle of winter, we tend to plump for the Auberge du Cousteau at Saint-Lary.

We go out of our way to go to the centre of this tiny village just to admire the colours of the pretty stone façades.

Yann knows us well now. Just looking at the fireplace brings back the colour to our cheeks, and the generous servings say everything for Gascony's cuisine served up for friends that have travelled far to enjoy it...

I often sit down on our favourite outdoor bench to take in the countryside view that's "So Gers".

We generally take ourselves round the castle. One summer we were taken on a Pass en Gers guided tour, and the guide took us round the village as well.

The exhibitions are constantly of high standard and that's another reason for going back to the castle. There are always fine new works to be discovered in the summer shows, while the iconic, huge display of nativity scene figurines – santons – in the autumn, never fails to impress our guests. Last summer we absolutely adored the creations of an artist that we're particularly fond of... Perry Taylor! This man of the Gers just couldn't be more British! Every one of his drawings is as witty, realistic and "cute" as the next. His art faithfully captures the Gascon soul and the easy life as relished in the Gers...

In the summer, we prefer to picnic in the Vassevin gardens at Jégun, or by the old wash-house at Lavardens. However, should we decide on a cooked meal, the two village restaurants are fine by us! They're different and we chop and change depending on our guests and their tastes.

Jégun is often the watering hole on our way back, where we drop in on an Irishman who's well known around these parts. We down a pint* at La Légende Irlandaise of a late afternoon... and sometimes linger on as the evening continues with a tuneless concert! Summer Sunday evenings just can't be matched. We never miss the Jégun Wine Fair on the 2nd Sunday in August.

CHEERS!

One chef, one product at the Hôtel de France

Vincent, the head cook, presents his dish based on Noire d'Astarac Bigorre, an exceptional old breed of chickens raised in the Gers, and elsewhere.

At the hob

The breast (the supreme) poached on one side, the thigh cooked in red Côtes de Gascogne wine served here with organic chickpea hummus from the Gers and garnished with Jerusalem artichoke crisps.

It's a super bird,
I like those who cook it¹

That's very much the philosophy of the house. What they serve their guests is the result of how strongly the Casassus family is rooted to the terroir and the local region.

In the dining room

Bruno, the head waiter, who wears the prestigious tricolour band² on his shirt collar, suggests two wines of character to drink with the Noire d'Astarac Bigorre.

• Colima Oeste 2015³: produced from old vines with three local grape varieties, tannat, merlot and malbec vinified together. Ripe berries and a hint of freshness add softness to set off this dish.

• Montus blanc, Pacherenc-du Vic-Bilh sec⁴: a superior fine, elegant dry white wine that strikes a balance between minerality and delicate woody notes, fruit and floral aromas... marvellous with the softness of the poached chicken and its thigh prepared coq au vin style!

4 seasons for 4 products

They are top chefs or bed & breakfast proprietors. We asked them to reveal their favourite seasonal terroir product.

Spring

Morels for Maxime Deschamps and Stéphane Mazières, chefs at the Domaine de Baulieu.

For their potency and subtlety, cooked whole stuffed, infused, duxelles... Here's a storage tip: keep them in the fridge in slightly damp paper wadding or poached and kept in their broth or dehydrated. Supplied by Stéphane Garros at Labejan. Suggested dish: organic egg from the Gers, foam of the season's first peas, morel duxelles.

Autumn

Duck breast for Jean-Bernard Cano who runs the Chartreuse de Dane. He likes serving it to his guests because it is what they expect... local produce. He buys them in from Lilian Soulan's farm. Suggested dish: double-cooked breast in a port wine sauce, fig conserve and candied onions, with a gratin of potato and the season's ceps, or roast butternut cubes!

Summer

Lavardens chickpeas from the GAEC SARAY for Anaïs Senat, who runs the Gouté Bed & Breakfast and brews craft beer.

"I tend to prepare chickpea hummus with tahini, lemon, a little garlic depending on the season, salt, pepper, water, and nothing else! Everyone likes hummus, children as much as adults. It goes well with all salads, come summer, come winter."

Winter

Fermented red cabbage for Thomas, the chef at JEFF envoie du bois!!! Bistrot & Cantine. He likes it for its originality and colour compared to the other winter vegetables. Here's a storage tip: put it in a glass jar with untreated coarse salt and apples. Supplier: Ferme de Cantauzel.

Suggested dish: red cabbage in jelly, with foie gras ravioles...

My holidays

Dear Grandma and Grandpa

My holidays have begun really well. It was Sunday yesterday, and we went to a farmers' market*.

We drove along lots of narrow roads to get there, and saw fields of very big sunflowers. Mummy wanted to stop to take photos.

When we got there, there were lots of little awnings with farmers selling from stalls, they told us all the details or invited us to taste for ourselves! There were big bouncy toys, so I made my way towards them with Mummy, but when I saw that there were pony rides, I went there, and Daddy came with me. That was really cool! When we got back, Mummy and Mummy were listening to singing musicians. They call that a banda.

A lady explained how they make Armagnac. There were loads of huge neatly stacked barrels that gave off a peculiar smell.

The lads ate a cake. They bit into it scattering what looked like little golden leaves everywhere, that made me chuckle. Tomorrow it'll be Tuesday evening and we're going to a circus show!

Lots of love and kisses.

As impressive for the eyes as for the taste, the brulôt consist in liberating the « Blanche d'Armagnac » of the power of alcohol to discover the fruity and authentic taste of this brandy. The Blanche d'Armagnac, mixed with sugar, is heated then flambéed.

A warm-hearted show, fascinating for all age groups by its mesmerising and majestic flame with changing colors: blue at the beginning, yellow at the end...

Long live the circus at Auch

Auch's romance with the circus began 45 years ago when Abbot Lavenère-Lussan created the Pop Circus School. Circus showman Achille Zavatta gave his blessing to the city's commitment for this popular form of performance by taking up his winter quarters in Auch.

Enthusiasm grew from year to year and the first festival was staged by volunteers. Auch soon attracted circus schools, artistes and professional, spurred by the passion and energy of those running the circus arts centre. New forms of circus arts were showcased there: dance, theatre and music were added to the circus disciplines in performances that perpetually reinvented the art form. The National Circus Centre was established.

CIRC (the centre of innovation and circus research) is based in the heart of the redeveloped former cavalry district of Auch. Its colourful habitat is organized around the permanent big top, the Dôme de Gascogne, that was inaugurated by no less than Bartabas and his Zingaro Equestrian Theatre.

Tents spring up around town every autumn half-term break, and artistes from all walks of life and countries amble about, rounds of applause thunder in the Dôme de Gascogne. That's the Contemporary Circus Festival that continues to this day! Contemporary circus offers all its generosity, daring and poetry in this setting with a line-up boosted by circus initiation workshops, screenings, music and more.

All year round, CIRCa supports circus arts creation primarily by welcoming circus troupes for residences who offer to show their work free of charge at the end of their residence!

And Pirouette Circaouette is THE festival for children and families! Events geared to all ages (from 2 years upwards) are programmed: circus (performances and initiation), theatre, dance, puppets, free open stage sessions, etc.

Stopover at Castéra-Verduzan

Castéra-Verduzan is a small spa resort half-way between Auch and Condom.

The little village has a few shops and holds a pleasant Sunday morning market that you might precede by strolling along the banks of the River Auloue to the hamlet of old Castéra.

There are several restaurants in the village, the nearby black pig farm and regionally famed bric-a-brac-antique dealer await you. The ODOST Laboratory (that makes the Buccotherm® range of dental hygiene products) is based there.

Besides, it's peaceful at Castéra, the atmosphere is tranquil, just right for cures and treatments...

The thermal water is soothing, anti-inflammatory and treats buccol-lingual mucous membrane conditions and periodontal disease. It relieves digestive problems and helps burn off fat.

You'll be sure to wind down at the well-being centre with its spa, Turkish bath, pool and gym.

While the Blue Pavilion bathing lake is an area that bustles with fun aquatic activities in summer, it is a peaceful site the rest of the year. It is also an excellent haven for the animal and plant species that thrive there.

Hiking trails, casino, playground amenities at the Lannelongue Park, concerts and other events round off the list of local recreational activities.

In September, the village stages the N'Amasse Pas Mousse Festival street arts festival.

* At the lake, water slides, grass and sandy beach, snack bar on site, skate-park, picnic tables and outdoor barbecues.

On the Saint-Lary hiking trail

The state-owned Larrama forest, ode to the gentle landscapes of the Gers.

Suitably shod, and with water and cereal bars in my backpack, I decided to head for Saint-Lary for an 11.5-km hike.

The guidebook purchased at the Tourist Office showed me that I had to set off from the village church, which has ample parking space. The first footpath panel is quite conspicuous, so I was all set for about 3 hours of bliss.

I took the little tarmac road that rises behind the church and changes into a path on the village outskirts. So much for the steep warm-up! I sat on a bench to get my breath back and take in the fabulous vista unfurling before me. I glanced over to the picturesque village of Saint-Lary and its charming little square.

I turned right and walked along the tarmac road for 1200 m towards Castillon-Massas. Once past the village limit panel, there are fields for as far as you can see. The gentle, typically rolling Gers landscape couldn't be more attractive.

I left the little road at the "la Julian" hamlet and took the right hand path. This is actually the pays Cœur de Gascogne GR, a 155-km circuitous path that links two Saint James Way paths (GR 65 and GR 653). The gravel path is overhung with trees in places, which offers some respite from the sun. The fabulous countryside was bedecked in all its splendour and was very uplifting.

The path continues along the gently undulating terrain.

As I approached the beekeeper's house, the track changed to grass. I walked around the farm on the right and along the edge of the wood for 100 m before I took the right-hand path that plunges deep into the Larrama forest.

I could see the lines of trees far way on the south crest.

The grass track crosses a large field and ends at the D930. WATCH OUT FOR VEHICLES!!!!

I crossed the road, skirting "Las Gougines" the country cottage and then made off to the right, my heart thumping as I crossed the tiny bridge over the brook.

The atmosphere in the forest is quite different. I started by negotiating a fine 800-m descent.

Then the forest path becomes broader and straightens out before rising again. After the last few hairpin bends, the deciduous trees make way for conifers to great effect. The panorama over the countryside soon comes into view.

At this point I left the GR and followed the yellow PR markers.

Watch out! If you get to a wrought-iron cross, you have overshot the mark, turn round and walk back 20 paces.

The path now meanders across fields. In fine weather you definitely need a hat, cap or some other head covering!!!

I got close to some imposing ruins of a former religious community. Look at this tree. Its trunk is very strange, deformed...

The stone path is bordered by cypress trees, suddenly I imagined I'd been spirited to Tuscany.

At "la Bruchette" hamlet I picked up a little ridge road and followed it to the next downhill slope path on the right.

In the distance, I could make out Saint-Lary and its private chateau (it once belonged to Countess Berthie von Colloredo-Mansfeld the mother of the Bogdanoff brothers 😊).

The slope took me down to a house that I skirted leaving the dovecote to my right. The beaten earth path hugs a large enclosure with a sign saying that it's a boar reserve.

I found myself back at the edge of "la Loustère" brook that I crossed before making my way back up towards the D930 and returning to the church.

PR: short hiking route - GR: long hiking route

Advice

• Always pack in your knapsack:

- water
- sweet snacks
- a hat
- sunglasses

• Seasoned hikers:

- there are about twenty hiking circuits in the area, with guide leaflets available from the Tourist Office.

• If you have a problem or want to give feedback on the marked walking trails...

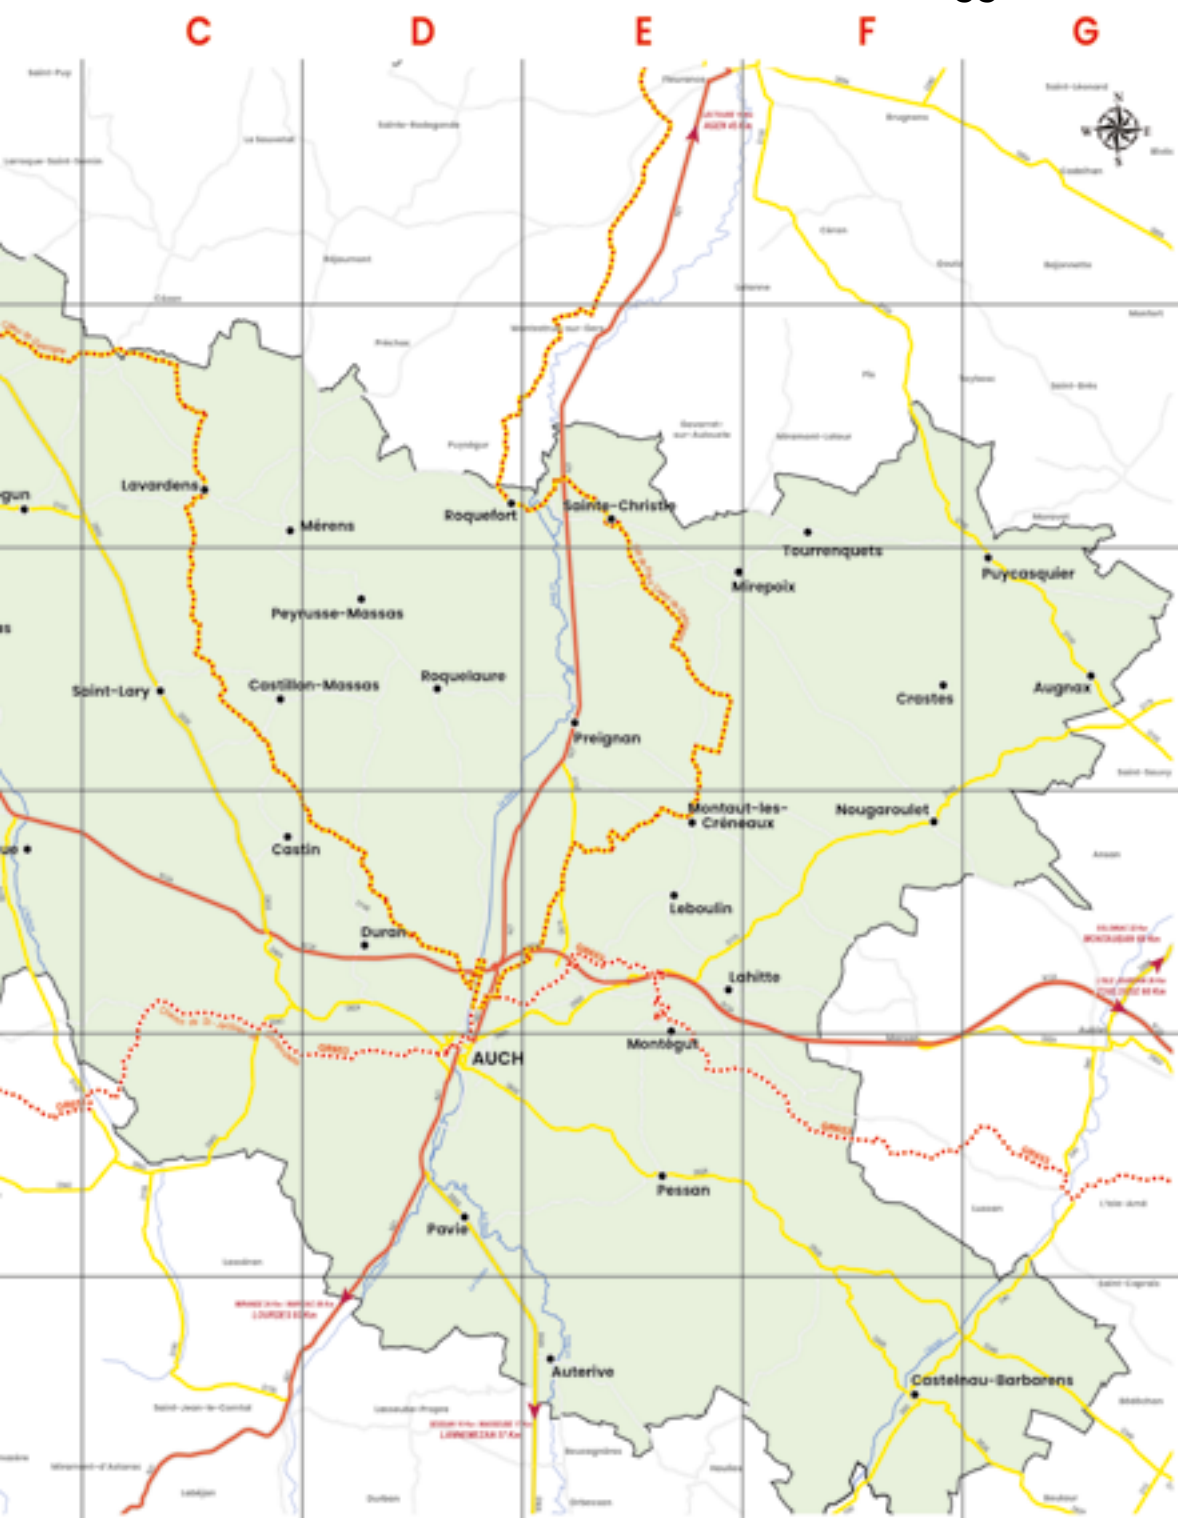

Flag it up on <http://sentinelles.sportsdenature.fr/> or at your Tourist Office.
